

I believe that the current NJ law regarding "do not call" list should not be changed. It is more stringent than the federal law, but it works. I do not desire to have companies contacting me via phone, even if I have conducted business with them in the past. Giving a company the authorization to contact me because I had a transaction with them 17 months ago, simply is not acceptable. They can contact me via electronic mail or snail mail, NOT on the phone. Please leave the NJ "Do Not Call" law as it is. If anything, the Federal law should be changed to become more stringent.
